

Industry experts talk about silver's bright future on InvestorIntel's PDAC 2022 Panel Series

In this InvestorIntel PDAC 2022 Panel on "Silver, The Technology Metal & Market", host Chris Thompson is joined by Critical Minerals Corner co-host & InvestorIntel columnist Byron W King, Silver Bullet Mines Corp.'s (TSXV: SBMI) VP Capital Markets and Director Peter Clausi, Bald Eagle Gold Corp.'s (TSXV: BIG) CEO and Director Chris Paul, and Volcanic Gold Mines Inc.'s (TSXV: VG) Founder, Director, President and CEO Simon Ridgway, to talk about the past and future importance of silver as both an investment and industrial metal.

In the video, which can also be viewed in full on the InvestorIntel YouTube channel (click here), Byron W King leads off with the observation that "just as there's not enough copper in the world to run all the wires, there's not enough silver in the world for all the electronics that the world has planned for itself." Chris Paul, CEO of Bald Eagle Gold says that there is a "dash for cash" right now, but "investors looking for more leverage are going to look at silver which typically will outperform gold in times like this."

Silver Bullet Mines' Peter Clausi discusses how the market has disconnected from traditional gold-silver price ratios. Simon Ridgway of Volcanic Gold Mines sees this as an opportunity creating "a better upside in silver than everything gold", because "silver is also now not just an investment metal but it's a battery metal so to speak, so I think there's a better upside in silver than there is in gold. You can see silver doubling – you can't see gold double."

The panel also discusses the current state of silver exploration and discoveries, and the challenges facing silver companies including working in silver-rich jurisdictions, ESG, and forging good relationships with local populations.
