

Christopher Ecclestone on the “eye-popping collection of metals” in Auxico Resources’ portfolio of monazite rich deposits

written by InvestorNews | November 18, 2022

In this InvestorIntel interview, host Tracy Weslosky interviews Hallgarten & Company’s Principal and Mining Strategist Christopher Ecclestone about his recent Initiation Research Report on Auxico Resources Canada Inc. (CSE: AUAG) that he published on November 9, 2022. Titled Amassing Critical Mass in Strategic Metals Christopher stresses how Auxico has emerged as “a real player in the monazite market”.

Over the course of this interview, Christopher comments on some of the positive highlights contained in this research report, which includes the following examples:

- + Auxico Resources is morphing from a rank-and-file explorer into a specialty metals trader and developer diversified across metals and continents
- + Through an accord with an unlisted sister corporation (Central America Nickel), the company has access to Rare Earth Elements (REE) and other critical metals for sale into global markets
- + Rare Earth prices have held firm at levels substantially above the average levels of the last ten years

He then goes on to provide an update on Auxico’s portfolio of monazite rich deposits that include an “eye-popping collection of metals” such as rare earths, titanium, hafnium and zircon.
