

Mark Vanry of Wedgemount Discusses Quadrupling Production from its Oil Assets in the Permian Basin

written by InvestorNews | March 2, 2023

In this second InvestorIntel interview in the last week, Byron W King gets an update from Wedgemount Resources Corp.'s (CSE: WDGY | OTCQB: WDGRF) CEO, President, and Director Mark Vanry about quadrupling production at their Willowbend light oil project located in North America's #1 oil-producing region of Permian Basin in West-Central Texas.

With only 3 of the 11 wells having undergone chemical treatment so far, Mark discusses the potential for significantly adding more production when the Company finishes treating all 11 wells by the end of March 2023. Using modern best practices on older, under-exploited wells, Mark explains how Wedgemount is growing production economically.

In addition, Mark sees the potential in upper bypassed pay zones that they have mapped and expects to get a 10%-12% recovery with work progressing on this project in Q4/2023 or early 2024.
