

Henry Weingarten on the US presidential election and the gold markets

written by InvestorNews | August 19, 2020

Henry Weingarten, Fund Director of The Astrologers Fund, Inc., spoke with InvestorIntel's Tracy Weslosky on who he thinks will win the US presidential election and how it will impact the market. He also talks about which sectors could be the best performers depending on who wins the election in November.

According to Weingarten, regardless of who wins the election, the gold and entertainment sectors will do well, and silver will do reasonably well. He also discusses rare earths, lithium, Tesla and electric vehicle technology sector. In the interview, Henry also shares his thoughts on what could be best for investors in the fall – cash, bullion or stock market.

To access the complete interview, click here.