(NCI), which is tasked with licensing NanoSphere's groundbreaking technology in countries outside the United States where medical and/or recreational cannabis is legal. The Company is also releasing two new product lines, including an intraoral cannabis product and an intranasal cannabis spray that can replace the need to smoke or vape cannabis. Both have applications in the medical and recreational cannabis markets.

The Company may pay certain finder fees in connection with the financing, subject to the policies of the Canadian Securities Exchange. All securities issuances are subject to the approval of the Exchange and will have a 4-month statutory hold period from the date of issuance.
