Nick Brusatore, Chairman of Affinor, comment: “This is an extremely exciting day for Affinor. This is a huge deal that will definitely bring the company to a much higher level”.

The Port of Willapa Harbor in Raymond, Washington, became the first government body in the state to establish a large scale marijuana growing operation legally under section I-502. Initiative 502 is one of two marijuana-legalization initiatives approved in the US which opens the door to legal investment in a business that already generates well over $1 billion in sales every year. In Washington State, I-502 has spawned an intricate taxation plan and a “three-tier” market structure for production, processing and retailing.

Raymond WA city officials say the legal marijuana growing operation is operating to the letter of the law and within regulations. The new growing industry enjoys significant public support and they are excited about the creation of many new jobs.

Affinor is exploring ways to ensure consistent revenue streams for the potential joint venture. This opportunity gives Affinor's trade, agricultural and drug development experts the freedom to explore export markets globally.
