

Ucore's Pat Ryan on creating a modern rare earths' industrial processing company in North America

written by InvestorNews | January 20, 2022

In a recent InvestorIntel interview, Jack Lifton spoke with Pat Ryan, Chairman and CEO of Ucore Rare Metals Inc. (TSXV: UCU | OTCQX: UURAF) about creating a modern rare earths' industrial processing company in North America and about Ucore's RapidSX™ technology for the separation and purification of rare earth elements.

In this InvestorIntel interview, which may also be viewed on YouTube (click here to subscribe to the InvestorIntel Channel), Pat Ryan explained how he is using his experience as the founder of a multi-million-dollar automotive OEM production part supplier company to develop an independent North American rare earths supply chain for the electric vehicles market. He went on to provide an update on Ucore's RapidSX™ platform with extraction rates 10 times the industry standard solvent-extraction process. Pat also provided an update on how Ucore is ensuring sufficient feedstock for its Alaska Strategic Metals Complex including a feedstock supply MOU signed with Vital Metals Limited (ASX: VML).

About Ucore Rare Metals Inc.

Ucore is focused on rare- and critical-metals resources, extraction, beneficiation, and separation technologies with the potential for production, growth, and scalability. Ucore has a 100% ownership stake in the Bokan-Dotson Ridge Rare Earth Element Project in Southeast Alaska, USA. Ucore's vision and plan is to become a leading advanced technology company, providing best-in-class metals separation products and services to the mining and mineral extraction industry.

Through strategic partnerships, Ucore's vision includes disrupting the People's Republic of China's control of the US REE supply chain through the development of a total, light and heavy-rare-earth processing facility – the Alaska Strategic Metals Complex in Southeast Alaska and the long-term development of reliable sources of feedstocks outside of China's control.
