

John Putters on how the AI driven WANDA™ from Visionstate is Changing the Standards for Cleanliness in Facility Management

written by InvestorNews | January 16, 2024

In a recent Investor.Coffee interview with host Tracy Weslosky, John Putters CEO of Visionstate Corp. (TSXV: VIS) discussed the growing need for effective cleaning protocols to prevent disease outbreaks and how WANDA™ has the potential to change standards for facility management cleanliness from airports to restaurants.

Specifically, they discuss the most recent deal that Visionstate IoT Inc., a subsidiary of Visionstate Corp., has entered into with Bunzl Canada Inc. This 3-year deal assigns Bunzl Canada the exclusive rights to distribute Visionstate's WandaNEXT product in Canada, Australia, and the UK. Concurrently, Visionstate IoT will manage direct sales of WandaNEXT in the U.S. through its internal sales team. This partnership is a strategic move for Visionstate, positioning them for further expansion in the international facility-management sector. The contract's implications are substantial, particularly in the Canadian market, where it is anticipated to increase Visionstate's existing revenue.

WandaNEXT, the flagship product of Visionstate, is an innovative AI-driven application widely utilized across various sectors to monitor and enhance cleaning protocols, thereby improving overall efficiency in building services. The technology has been pivotal in elevating the standards of cleanliness and operational excellence, marking a significant advancement in the facility management industry.

The collaboration between Visionstate Corp. and Bunzl Canada extends beyond mere distribution rights. It encompasses a revenue-sharing arrangement across the three territories and involves joint efforts in the continued development and enhancement of the WandaNEXT platform. John Putters, the CEO of Visionstate Corp., expressed enthusiasm about the extended partnership with Bunzl Canada. He highlighted the contract's importance in aligning with Visionstate's strategic objectives and strengthening its position in the global market. For more information, click here
